This year's Jury of the EFQM Excellence Award comprised of, among others, the CEOs and Senior Executives of BT Global Services, EDF and Bouygues as well as high level representatives from the Public Sector. Through the entire process of award assessment, which involves a site visit from an international group of experienced assessors, true role model organisations are sought after and identified. While all applicants are organisations of high calibre, only a small group are awarded a finalist distinction. This year's finalists demonstrate a strong representation in the automotive sector of the private industry and in the public sector (education, healthcare and local government).

EFQM has spent over 20 years sharing what works between its member organisations to help them implement their strategies. Through a network of over 700 active members, comprising companies of every size and sector, EFQM applies its know-how and extracts outstanding approaches by engaging with executives and front-line managers.

The EFQM Forum, 27-29 October in Paris, includes a gala dinner to celebrate the annual winners of the EFQM Excellence Award. The very first winner, Xerox, received the Award from the King of Spain in 1992. From then onwards, prominent governmental leaders and royalty have been invited to present this prestigious annual Award. The EFQM Excellence Award recognises organisations with an undisputable track record of progress and results for both financial and non financial performance. The Award, which is given to Europe's best performing companies and not-for-profit organisations, is Europe's most prestigious award for organisational Excellence.
